SHOWING RICH ORE.

Fifty Thousand Dollars Refused for Claims in Grimes Canyon.

The development of copper mines east of Lovelock continues. The greatest work has been done on the properties of the Nevada United company of which J. T. Reid is manager. For the past few weeks the work of driving the 300-foot tunnel on this property has been retarded on account of making needed repairs to the boiler. The Burley drills which were advancing the tunnel at the rate of nine feet a day were taken off though the slower hand drilling has been kept up and the tunnel advanced at about four feet per day.

A crosscut made at 400 feet from the mouth of this tunnel has cut a sulphide ore zone for sixty feet and has not yet reached the opposite wall. From this crosscut they will make a raise up through the sulphide zone some 400 feet to the old workings where such large deposits of rich copper ore are developed.

A recent assay from these workings showed 21 per cent copper, besides good values in silver and gold. While working on claims to the north of the Nevada United holdings last week Charlie Keith uncovered a ledge rich in galena, silver and copper. Its silver values are 200 ounces, while the copper stains are heavy and chunks of galena glisten all through it. This new find but adds another of many rich showings on the claims of the Nevada United company and adjacent holdings.

Grimes canyon has been organized under the name of Copper Kettle and is reported to be very lively. Eighty to 100 mining men are now in the camp and the development on locations is pretty well completed.

Bunch and McIntyre have been offered $50,000 for their claims, but have declined the offer, holding their ground for a higher figure.

Two Reno parties, with automobiles have been going to and from the canyon for the past two weeks and are trying to get hold of likely prospects from various holders.

Messrs. Erickson and Weller returned last Friday from the canyon where they secured claims that show 20 per cent ore. They got two claims and a fraction, showing how closely the ground is taken up.—Lovelock Tribune.

JAY GOULD WANTED IT.

The castle of Chapultepec, the official summer residence of the president of Mexico, is to be either rebuilt or abandoned entirely, and a more modern house is to be erected for the uses of the chief executive. This is a project that has been hanging fire for about sixteen years. Before this time Jay Gould had visited Mexico in search of a climate that would benefit his failing health. At that time it was stated that he had offered President Diaz $5,000,000 for the castle of the Chapultepec, for the purpose of making it his home for part of the year. The offer was, of course, refused. The castle is one of the most noted and historic in Mexico. Its history dates back to the days when Mexico was ruled by Spanish viceroys. It was originally built as the official home of the viceroys. It served during the days when Mexico was an empire, then a republic again, always as the official residence of the ruler.

The State Fair, to be held at Reno this month, is attracting attention all over the State, and the Tonopah and Goldfield, and Goldfield and Bullfrog roads have made special rates of one and one-third fare for the round trip from all points on their lines. The tickets will be good from September 16th to the 21st, and good returning on the 22d. 9-14t support is being given to the suggestion that the career of the notorious gambling saloon at Monte Carlo should be ended. "The Monte Carlo Casino has been responsible for more suicides than any other institution of any kind in the world," a frequent visitor to the Riviera said this week. "It was reported three of four weeks ago that the gambling house was about to be closed, but it is still drawing thousands of people into its net every year, and so great has been its financial success that a new gaming place in the neighborhood is being talked of. It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that thousands of people have committed suicide through being ruined at Monte Carlo. As a rule, the world hears little or nothing of such suicides, for it is not to the interest of the town to say much about them. But now and then striking cases come to light. Here are a few:

TO CLOSE UP MONTE CARLO

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Increasing

December 9, 1904.—Harold Clarke, son of a distinguished San Francisco family, and a law student of New York, shot himself through the head in the Hotel Regina, Paris. He had just returned from Monte Carlo, where he lost all of his money at the tables.

December 17, 1904.—A young Italian count walked out of the Casino, a picture of dejection, and after sitting in the gardens for a while, talking to a lady, he pulled out a revolver and shot himself through the heart. Attendants quickly removed the body, and few persons were aware of what happened.

December 18, 1904.—Rudolf Ryder, a young Viennese gentleman, lost all his money at the tables, and going out in the morning, lay down in front of a train at Villefranche and was cut to pieces.

"These are only a few instances noted now and then during a single month," he continued. "No one knows how many more cases occurred altogether in that same month, or how many more occur in a year. Ruined players are continually jumping into the sea and getting drowned, or going to Paris or elsewhere, there to shoot themselves. But the suicides do not represent a tenth of the misery due to the Casino. So many people are 'broken' by the bank that it has been necessary to establish a relieving department, in order to get rid of the ruined players, who might otherwise commit suicide.

"Every day in the season a score or more of men and women apply to the Casino offices for a dole to pay their hotel bills and their fares home. Some time ago a British officer, who had lost every penny, was given a free P. and O. ticket to Calcutta and $250. The sums paid out by the Casino range from $25 to $2500. But in spite of this toll in its profits, the Casino has made millions sterling out of the gamblers who try to break the bank. Last year its total receipts came to $7,540,000, an increase of $759,400 on the year before. After every expense had been defrayed there was close on $5,000,000 for distribution among the shareholders, at the rate of $70 a share. This was equal to 70 per cent on the original value of the shares.

"The curse of Monte Carlo is not merely that it is responsible for the ruin of hundreds of men and women," he concluded, "but that it entails undeserved wretchedness on their families, who often have to suffer not only privation, but great mental anguish, directly due to the evil influence of the gambling tables. It is a forcing bed of crime. Swindlers and thieves of every class haunt the place. The spot is the most beautiful one on the Riviera, and has the finest climate for invalids. It is time that such a place was rid of the curse of the gambling den."

A suggestion that the gambling dens of Monte Carlo should be suppressed by the powers of Europe is attracting widespread attention. Mr. Max Pemberton, the novelist, who is an authority on Monte Carlo, says that the diplomatic situation would make any such action difficult. "I cannot pronounce an opinion on a crime that is still untried," he said, "but one thing is clear—Monte Carlo is the haunt of every adventurer in the world. It is astounding how many big swindlers and thieves have been planned at Monte Carlo. The obvious curse of the place is that fools go there to make money out of the tables, and rogues go there to make money out of the fools. The atmosphere is most demoralizing to young people, who lose their heads, and also all sense of the value of money. Another great evil is that of pure girls succumbing to the atmosphere. They are often brought in contact at the tables with undesirable persons, with whom they actually converse.

"The government of every country is perfectly aware that Monte Carlo should be suppressed, but the diplomatic situation makes action impossible, and France, under whose protection Monte Carlo exists, is placed in a most difficult position. The authorities at Monte Carlo do their best to preserve order in the rooms, but it is perfectly impossible to keep out rogues of both sexes. Wherever you have unrestricted gambling you will have attendant crime. The suicides at Monte Carlo I regard as only a minor part of the evil. There must be thousands of tragedies in all parts of Europe which could be traced back to the gambling rooms at Monte Carlo. I am convinced that the suppression of Monte Carlo would prove a more practical and nobler work for humanity than the advancement of impossible propositions at The Hague peace conference.

A letter published by the Times, and signed Indicus, says that President Roosevelt might well assume the initiative in this righteous crusade, for the American plutocrats are as prominent at the tables as the aristocracy of Europe. On the same day the Gauls are supposed to have murdered Miss Lavinie there occurred at Castellamare the suicide of a young English and American couple on their honeymoon who had been ruined at Monte Carlo.

LOOKS GOOD AROUND OASIS.

Many are Prospecting With Satisfactory Results.

Mr. C. M. Tucker, at one time the proprietor of the Barrel house, but who sold out and left here about three months ago, arrived in town from Oasis on Wednesday. He has located a group of claims on Cottonwood creek, three or four miles west of Oasis, and has a sack of specimens that would indicate that he is hot on the right trail, and will catch it good in the near future. The main ledge in the group shows vein matter which pans for five or six feet in width, but two feet of it carries the best values, and several assays show returns better than $100, and the lowest received showed the handsome figure of $81.26. The rock carries a small percentage of silver and is slightly copper stained.

On the group are four more smaller veins, which are dipping in a manner which indicates that they will join when depth is gained. One of them shows some splendid bunches of silver-lead, and promises to develop into a bonanza in that line. Mr. Tucker feels highly elated over his prospects, and has plans for a large lot of development work during the coming season.

There are many prospectors now in the Oasis country, and much work is being done that promises well for the future. The new tent town of White Wolf is going along, and some good ore is being mined there, and prospects are bright. Oasis is lively and the Forman brothers are kept busy.
